francis fukuyama claims that liberal democracy is the end of history this book provides a theoretical re examination of this claim through postmodernist ideas the book argues that postmodern ideas provide a valuable critique to fukuyama s thesis and poses the questions can we talk about a universal and teleological history a universal human nature or an autonomous individual it addresses whether postmodern theories concerning the movement of time what it means to be human and what it means to be an individual subject can be accommodated within a theory of a history that ends in liberal democracy the author argues that incorporating elements of postmodern thought into fukuyama s theory makes it possible to produce a stronger and more compelling account of the theory that liberal democracy is the end of history the result of this is to underpin fukuyama s theory with a more complex understanding of the movement of time the human and the individual and to show that postmodern concepts can paradoxically be used to strengthen fukuyama s theory that the end of history is liberal democracy the book will be of interest to students and scholars of political theory postmodernism and the work of francis fukuyama with his an interpretation of nietzsche s on the uses and disadvantage of history for life anthony k jensen shows how timely nietzsche s second untimely meditation really is this comprehensive and insightful study contextualizes and analyzes a wide range of nietzsche s earlier thoughts about history teleology typology psychology memory classical philology hegelianism and the role historiography plays in modern culture on the uses and disadvantage of history for life is shown to be a timely work too insofar as it weaves together a number of nietzsche s most important influences and thematic directions at that time ancient culture science epistemology and the thought of schopenhauer and burckhardt rather than dismiss it as a mere early work jensen shows how the text resonates in nietzsche s later perspectivism his theory of subjectivity and eternal recurrence and by using careful philological analysis of the text s composition history jensen is in position to fully elucidate and evaluate nietzsche s arguments in their proper contexts as such jensen s interpretation should restore nietzsche s second untimely meditation to a prominent place among 19th century philosophies of history how can theology think and talk about history building on the work of the major twentieth century theologian hans urs von balthasar as well as entering into sharp critical debate with him this book sets out to examine the value and the potential of a theodramatic conception of history by engaging in dialogue not only with theologians and philosophers like von balthasar hegel and barth but with poets and dramatists such as the greek tragedians shakespeare and gerard manley hopkins the book makes its theological principles open and indebted to literary forms and seeks to show how such a theology might be applied to a world intrinsically and thoroughly historical by contrast with theologies that stand back from the contingencies of history and so fight shy of the uncertainties and openness of christian existence this book s theology is committed to taking seriously the god who works in time this widely used guide for students has long emphasized the excitement of historical discovery rooted in writing about the past this new edition continues that emphasis while also affirming the contemporary significance of the search for truth in historical writing it includes new and revised sections related to electronic technologies as well as updated examples of recent historical scholarship throughout it maintains the welcoming accessible and inclusive tone of previous editions while walking students through complex ideas and established writing standards as it has since its inception the tenth edition of a short guide to writing about history helps students confront and conquer any of the challenges they might face in writing about history an invaluable guide to this classic text surveying the book s composition and central arguments the intellectual context of its composition and its continuing influence the concept of history reflects on the presuppositions behind the contemporary understanding of history that often remain implicit and not spelled out it is a critique of the modern understanding of history that presents it as universal and teleological progressively moving forward to an end although few contemporary philosophers and historians maintain the view that there is strict universality and teleology in history the remnants of these positions still affect our understanding of history but if history is not universal and singular evolving toward an objective universal end it should be possible to admit of multiple histories some of which we appropriate as our own another important aspect of this book is that it provides an account of history that is itself both historical and rooted in attempts to narrate and explain history from its inception in antiquity the book seeks to establish features or constituents of history that might be found in any historical account and might themselves be considered historical invariants in history why bother with history keith jenkins has an answer he helps us re think the end of history as signalled by postmodernity readers may disagree with him but he never fails to provoke debate about the future of the past joanna bourke professor of history birkbeck college keith jenkins work on historical theory is renowned this collection presents the essential elements of his work over the last fifteen years here we see jenkins address the difficult and complex question of defining the limits of history the collection draws together the key pieces of his work in one handy volume encompassing the ever controversial issue of postmodernism and history questions on the end of history and radical history into the future exchanges with perez zagorin and michael coleman further illuminate the level of debate that has surrounded postmodernism and which continues to do so an extended introduction and abstracts which contextualize each piece together with a foreword by hayden white and an afterword by alun munslow make this collection essential reading for all those interested in the theory and practice of history and its development over the last few decades historical study has traditionally been built around the placement of the human at the center of inquiry the de stabilized concepts of the human in contemporary thought challenge this configuration however the ways in which these challenges provoke new historical perspectives both expand and enrich historical study but are also weak and vulnerable in their concept of the human lacking or omitting something valuable in our self understanding a personalist philosophy of history argues for a robust concept of personhood in our experience of the past as a way to resolve this conflict focused on those who know history rather than on the abstract properties of knowledge it extends the moral agency of persons into non human trans human and deep history domains it describes an approach to moral life through historical experience and study rather than through abstractions and it describes a kind of historiography that matches factual accuracy to both the constructed nature of understanding and to unavoidable moral purpose luke acts and the end of history investigates how understandings of history in diverse texts of the graeco roman period illuminate lukan eschatology in addition to luke acts it considers ten comparison texts as detailed case studies throughout the monograph polybius s histories diodorus siculus s library of history virgil s aeneid valerius maximus s memorable doings and sayings tacitus s histories 2 maccabees the qumran war scroll josephus s jewish war 4 ezra and 2 baruch the study makes a contribution both in its method and in the questions it asks by placing luke acts alongside a broad range of texts from luke s wider cultural setting it overcomes two methodological shortfalls frequently evident in recent research limiting comparisons of key themes to texts of similar genre and separating non jewish from jewish parallels further by posing fresh questions designed to reveal writers underlying conceptions of history such as beliefs about the shape and end of history or divine and human agency in history this monograph challenges the enduring tendency to underestimate the centrality of eschatology for luke's account influential post war scholarship reflected powerful concerns about salvation history arising from its particular historical setting and criticised luke for focusing on history instead of eschatology due to the parousia's delay though some elements of this thesis have been challenged luke continues to be associated with concerns about the delayed parousia affecting contemporary interpretation by contrast this study suggests that viewing luke acts within a broader range of texts from luke's literary context highlights his underlying teleological conception of history it demonstrates not only that luke retains a sense of eschatological urgency seen in other new testament texts but a structuring of history more akin to the literature of late second temple judaism than the non jewish graeco roman historiographies with which luke acts is more commonly compared the results clarify not only lukan eschatology but related concerns or effects of his eschatology such as luke's politics and approach to suffering this monograph thereby offers an important corrective to readings of luke acts based on established exegetical habits and will help to inform interpretation for scholars and students of luke acts as well as classicists and theologians interested in these key questions the third volume in this international review takes raising standards as its central theme raising standards is no simple matter either conceptually or empirically whatever politicians might think if it is to happen it must draw on research and practical experience from other countries this book traces the development of the polish theory of history analysing how jerzy topolski krzysztof pomian and olga tokarczuk have both built upon and transgressed the metahistorical theories of american historian hayden white poland's reception of white's work has gone through different phases from distancing to a period of fascination and eventual critical analysis beginning with topolski's methodological school in the 1980s topolski played a major role in international debates on historical theory in the second half of the 20th century the book's second study is a rare opportunity for english speaking audiences to engage with the thoughts of pomian a philosopher and historian of ideas who has both complemented and developed theories of historical cognition independently from white in the final chapter the book presents a study of the historical imagination in 21st century central and eastern europe through the work of novelist tokarczuk the winner of the 2018 nobel prize in literature in considering the contributions of these three thinkers the book explores the active process by which past becomes history and thus motivates contemporary actions and realities by deconstructing and reconstructing contemporary theories of history this research is a unique contribution to the fields of historiography and the philosophy of history the open access version of this book available at taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a creative commons attribution non commercial no derivatives cc by nc nd 4.0 license history is a nightmare from which i am trying to awake stephen dedalus's famous complaint articulates a characteristic modern attitude toward the perceived burden of the past as robert spoo shows in this study Joyce's creative achievement from the time of his sojourn in Rome in 1906-07 to the completion of Ulysses in 1922 cannot be understood apart from the ferment of historical thought that dominated the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries tracing James Joyce's historiographic art to its formative contexts. Spoo reveals a modernist author passionately engaged with the problem of history forging a new language that both dramatizes and redefines that problem.
